

Song of the Sun (film)

Song of the Sun is a 1933 film directed by Max Neufeld.

Production

Produced in Berlin in both German and Italian versions - by Angelo Besozzi for the Italian part -, it was presented in Italian cinemas in October 1933.

Plot

A young lawyer impersonates tenor Giacomo Lauri Volpi to attract the attention of a theater manager's secretary, with whom he is in love. A story full of ups and downs, with a happy ending.

The criticism

Filippo Sacchi, in the pages of Corriere della Sera of October 31, 1933, " There's so much in this film, it's impossible to list it all. However, the ending has a twist. After the performance, you can see the Verona Arena emptying. With the last exit closed and the last light turned off, an electrician shines a spotlight over the immense amphitheater to make sure no one is left inside. He spots two figures embracing right on the last steps: the lawyer and the blonde secretary. Not bad! "
